CUTICURA CURED HIM
Eczema Came on Legs and Ankles
— Could Not Wear Shoes Because OF BAD SCALING AND ITCHING

"I have been successfully cured of dry eczema. I was inspecting the removal of noxious weeds from the edge of a river and was constantly in the dust from the weeds. At night I cleaned my limbs but felt a prickly sensation. I paid no attention to it until it came to be too itchy and sore and began getting two running sores. My ankles were all sore and scabby and I could not wear shoes. I had to use carpet and felt slippers for weeks. I got a cake of the Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. In less than ten days I could put on my boots and in less than three weeks I was free from the confounded itching. Capt. George P. Bliss, Chief of Police, Morris, Maine, Mar. 20, '07, and Sept. 24, '08."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BROADWAY THEATER.

The Old Homestead.

Denman Thompson's The Old Homestead, unimpaired in every way and secondary more virile and compelling than in the past, is now in its twenty-fourth season and is playing to audiences that completely fill the theater. The company appears. The audience follows the thread of the old story with as much unflagging interest as if it were all brand new. The production in all the essential details that go to make up a play are perfect. Such familiar scenes as the old farmhouse in the New Hampshire hills, where the air of good wholesome honesty. The equally familiar Grace church scene, with the choir singing the well known but always pleasing music, is said to be as good as in former seasons. One of the secrets of the longevity of this simple play of a simple people lies in the high standard always maintained in production and presenting company. Frank Thompson, Denman Thompson's son, who is manager, keeps the traditions of the old play well in hand, and he consequently reaps a golden harvest every season.

At the Broadway theater tonight.

Richard J. Jose.

Richard J. Jose, a famous contralto, who will be seen at the Broadway theater next Saturday, Nov. 27, matinee and night, in Silver Threads, a new play written especially for her by Martin V. Merie, is known among his particular little circle of friends as a very good fellow and one who is fond of springing a joke on some unsuspecting victim. He tells of an occurrence in which he was one of the chief actors last season when he was in town. It was in a small southern California town, where the train stopped for twenty minutes. Jose got off the train and entered into the engine house in the station and seating himself at a table beckoned to the waiter, the only one in the place.

"Water," Jose said, "bring me two eggs, one fried on one side and the other fried on the other side." The waiter looked at Jose for fully a minute and then shuffled off to the kitchen. He was back in less than ten minutes and then retired to the kitchen. Soon from the direction of the kitchen came much noise and angry voices. The waiter came out of the kitchen, running toward Jose. "Please, mister," he blurted out when he reached the singer's side, "please, mister, is it just the same as you if I have your two eggs boiled? You see, the cook and me has had a misunderstanding."

Mr. Jose left without the eggs and the waiter is still wondering what he meant.

WANTS A NORMAL SCHOOL.

Waterbury Still After an Institution of Its Own.

The following is from the Hartford Times:

During a recent visit to this city, Senator John Hurley of Waterbury made the statement that Waterbury will come before the general assembly at the next session for an appropriation for a new normal school to be located in the city. Senator Hurley expects to be a member of the next senate and it is believed that the great majority of the voters of the Sixteenth district think that his expectations will be realized. There are some people who are not entirely satisfied that there is another normal school needed in the city. At the present time the schools in Danbury and Willimantic could accommodate between them about 300 normal students. There are about sixty normal students from Waterbury attending the schools already established, most of them going to the school in New Haven, which by reason of the trolley service is easily accessible to them. It has always been regretted that a school was not established in Waterbury instead of Danbury. The legislature at the session of 1903 would not have made an appropriation for the location of a normal school in Danbury if the members had voted on the merits of the proposition alone. It is well known that what was a combination of interests that the project was favorably acted on by the legislators. New London county, and for that matter, the entire eastern part of the state, wanted an institution for the insane, but it was found impossible to secure enough money for the purpose. Danbury wanted a normal school, but there was very little chance of convincing a majority of the legislators that the educational needs of the city were so great. The western part of the state were suffering through the want of the school. When the statement was afterwards made in the house by a member who favored the appropriation that the school would fill a long felt want, it was thought that it was in this case. If we did not believe in it we would not make this offer. Today is the best day you will ever have to send for it. Do your writing plainly so there will be no mistake. Fill out coupon; it won't take a minute's time and mail it to us.

Freight, and More Freight.

The freight business on the Western division of the New Haven road is such a booming condition at present that it is almost impossible to get that particular division, says the Danbury News. Sunday was a record Sunday in respect to freight trains. Extra and special trains were constantly going through this city from Hopewell Junction to Hartford, and from Hartford to Danbury. During the day several trains became stalled at the "sag," and this tied up traffic each time.
